

Notes on Contributors

Ewa Błasiak is a PhD candidate at the University of Wrocław, where she received her MA degree in 2014. Her research interests encompass medievalism in contemporary British drama with a special focus on the reception and reworkings of the morality play tradition. The title of her PhD dissertation is The Return of the Morality Play Tradition to Modern British Drama. She teaches English Literature.

ewa.blasiak@poczta.onet.pl

Instytut Filologii Angielskiej UWr, ul. Kuźnicza 22, 50-138 Wrocław

Anna Budziak is Associate Professor at the University of Wrocław, Poland. Her research interests include Victorian literature, British Decadent Aestheticism, Modernism, and the links between literature and philosophy, with an emphasis on American neo-pragmatism and the concept of the self. She teaches courses on late-Victorian and modernist British literature and literary theory. She has published articles exploring the interface between philosophy and literature and has authored two books: in Polish, Historia u T. S. Eliota and, in English, Text, Body and Indeterminacy: Doppelgänger Selves in Pater and Wilde. The latter was on the final shortlist of three for the biennial ESSE Book Award 2008–2010.

budziaka@gmail.com

Instytut Filologii Angielskiej UWr, ul. Kuźnicza 22, 50-138 Wrocław.

Martina Ciceri is a PhD candidate at the University of Rome “La Sapienza” and a member of the Anglo-Russian Research Network. Martina is currently working on her PhD thesis entitled Anglo-Russian Aesthetics Transactions in Late Victorian and Edwardian England, with a specific focus on the literary interactions between the Garnetts and the Russian political émigrés of the late 19th century. She is conducting her research both in Rome and at the University of Durham (UK). Her fields of interest focus on the interrelation between Migration, Victorian, and Modernist studies. She has authored an article on Ford Madox Ford and the Russian community of refugees in early 20th-century Paris, which will be published in 2016.

martina.ciceri89@gmail.com

Università di Roma La Sapienza, dipartimento di studi europei, americani e inter-culturali, via Carlo Fea 2 (Villa Mirafiori), 00161 Roma, Italy

Anna Cichoń is senior lecturer in English literature at the Department of English Studies of the University of Wrocław, Poland. She teaches survey lectures, monograph classes and MA seminars on the 20th-century novel and life-writing in English. Her research interests focus on autobiographical and post-colonial studies and the use of life-writing conventions in fiction. She has published articles on modern and postmodern fiction and life-writing.

anna.cichon@onet.pl

Instytut Filologii Angielskiej UWr, ul. Kuźnicza 22, 50-138 Wrocław

Justyna Deszcz-Tryhubczak is Assistant Professor of Literature and Director of the Center for Young People's Literature and Culture at the Department of English Studies, University of Wrocław, Poland, where she teaches courses on children's literature and film. A Kosciuszko and Fulbright Scholar (2012), she has published a monograph on Salman Rushdie, Rushdie in Wonderland: "Fairytaleness" in Salman Rushdie's Fiction (2004). She has also published articles on Salman Rushdie, Angela Carter, fairy tales, and YA fantasy, for example in Folklore and Marvels & Tales and Children's Literature in Education. She has co-edited Towards or Back to Human Values? Spiritual and Moral Dimensions of Contemporary Fantasy (2006), Considering Fantasy: Ethical, Didactic and Therapeutic Aspects of Fantasy in Literature and Film (2007), Relevant across Cultures: Visions of Connectedness and Earth Citizenship in Modern Fantasy for Young Readers (2009) and Exploring the Benefits of the Alternate History Genre (2010). Her research interests include children's literature and culture, utopianism, ecocriticism, and intermediality.

justyna.deszcz-tryhubczak@uwr.edu.pl

Instytut Filologii Angielskiej UWr, ul. Kuźnicza 22, 50-138 Wrocław

Wojciech Drąg is a lecturer at Wrocław University's Department of English Studies. In 2007 he received an MA in Literature, Culture and Society at the University of Glamorgan in Wales. In 2013, Drąg defended his doctoral thesis on the relationship between memory and loss in the novels of Kazuo Ishiguro (supervised by Prof. Ewa Kęłbowska-Lawniczak) at Wrocław University. He is a co-founder and academic supervisor of the Literary Intersections academic circle. His academic interests focus on contemporary British fiction, experimental literature, canonicity and literary prizes. He is the author of Revisiting Loss: Memory, Trauma and Nostalgia in the Novels of Kazuo Ishiguro (Cambridge Scholars Publishing, 2014) and The Pursuit of Meaning in the Early Novels of Julian Barnes (Scholars' Press, 2015).

wojciech.drag@uni.wroc.pl

Instytut Filologii Angielskiej UWr, ul. Kuźnicza 22, 50-138 Wrocław

Malgorzata Jedynak works as Assistant Professor in Second Language Learning and Teaching Section, Department of English Studies at the University of Wrocław. In 2004 she obtained her PhD degree in applied linguistics. She expanded her linguistic interests covering a post-graduate course on methodology of teaching the visually impaired and blind learners. She specialises in typhlology, L2 learning and teaching and language policies. She teaches courses on current challenges in L2 teaching and learning, implementation of language policies across the EU states, and teaching L2 to young learners. Her research papers are mainly related to L1 and L2 acquisition by visually impaired learners, English as Lingua Franca, and the EU language policy. She has authored Critical Period Hypothesis Revisited. The Impact of Age on Ultimate Attainment in the Pronunciation of a Foreign Language (2009, Peter Lang), edited Neofilolog 42/1 (2014) and co-edited Neofilolog 42/2 (2014). Her ongoing interdisciplinary book project concerns FL teaching and learning in Europe, visual impairment and affectivity.

gosiajedynak@poczta.onet.pl

Instytut Filologii Angielskiej UWr, ul. Kuźnicza 22, 50-138 Wrocław

Max Karpinski is a poet as well as a doctoral candidate and teaching assistant at the University of Toronto. He usually writes about contemporary Canadian experimental poetry. His research interests include the politics of poetic form and poetic engagements with neoliberalism. His creative and critical writing has appeared in Lemon Hound, Echolocation, and online for the University of Pennsylvania's Kelly Writers House.

mxkarpinski@gmail.com

English Department, University of Toronto

170 St. George Street, Sixth Floor

Toronto, Ontario, Canada, M5R 2M8

Mateusz Marecki is a final year PhD candidate at the University of Wrocław, Poland. His research interests focus on cognitive and empirical approaches to literature and music. He teaches courses on English history, Anglophone literature, literary theory and English for tourism. He has published articles on cognitive scripts and schema in literature, cognitive poetics, music perception and intermediality. He is currently working on his PhD project entitled The Literary Mind and the Musical Mind: A Cognitive Approach to Emotion and Meaning Construction in Literature and Music.

matmarecki@gmail.com

Instytut Filologii Angielskiej UWr, ul. Kuźnicza 22, 50-138 Wrocław

Agnieszka Rychlewska is currently a PhD student in the Faculty of Letters at the University of Wrocław, Poland. She holds an MA degree in applied linguistics from the same faculty. She is also a graduate of Postgraduate Studies in EU Educational Programmes from the Faculty of Social Sciences and she completed the Postgraduate Studies in Translation at the Department of English Studies. She has authored two articles on error correction methodology — “The effectiveness of written corrective feedback in the acquisition of the English article system by Polish learners” (2014) and “Refleksja w nauczaniu i uczeniu się języka obcego” (2015). She has been professionally involved in teaching English for 10 years, currently at the secondary school and The Wrocław Academy for the Dramatic Arts. Her research interests pertain to ELT methodology, specifically to oral and written corrective feedback.

rychlewska.agnieszka@gmail.com

Instytut Filologii Angielskiej UWr, ul. Kuźnicza 22, 50-138 Wrocław

Lukasz Stolarski is Assistant Professor of English Linguistics at Jan Kochanowski University in Kielce, Poland. He has taught courses on a wide variety of subjects within the field of linguistics, but his particular areas of specialization are articulatory phonetics, corpus-based text analysis and statistics for the humanities. His research interests focus on the phonetics of speech and he has published several articles on the production of selected articulatory phenomena. This has led him to investigate the relationship between speech acoustics and various psychological mechanisms. His most recent publications include papers on sound symbolism and on the ways in which emotions may be communicated vocally. He is also an assistant editor of Token: A Journal of English Linguistics.

lstolarski@wp.pl

Instytut Filologii Obcych UJK, ul. Świętokrzyska 21D, 25-406 Kielce

Laura Suchostawska is Assistant Professor at the University of Wrocław, Poland. Her research interests focus on the writings of Henry David Thoreau, metaphor, cognitive poetics, ecolinguistics and ecocriticism. She teaches courses on metaphor, cognitive semantics, cognitive poetics and writing. She is the author of the book Space and Metaphor (2005) and one of the editors of the book Eating America: Crisis, Sustainance, Sustainability (2015). She has written articles on metaphor, blending and other areas of cognitive semantics as well as on the language of ecology and nature writing.

laura@uni.wroc.pl

Instytut Filologii Angielskiej UWr, ul. Kuźnicza 22, 50-138 Wrocław

Julia Szoltysek, PhD, works as Assistant Professor at the University of Silesia in Katowice, Poland. Her research interests include representations of the Ottoman Middle East in Western art, literature, and opera, travel discourses, and postcolonial and colonial studies. She teaches courses on the history of American and British literature and literary theory. Her articles and reviews have appeared in refereed collections and journals published by, among others, Routledge-Taylor&Francis, Peter Lang, and Cambridge Scholars Publishing. She is the co-editor of the monograph Culture and the Rites/Rights of Grief published in 2013 by the CSP, and the collection of articles Faces of Grief (forthcoming in 2016, University of Silesia Press).

julia.szoltysek@us.edu.pl

Institute of English Cultures and Literatures, University of Silesia in Katowice, Gen. Stefana Grota-Roweckiego 5, 41-205 Sosnowiec, Poland

Zsuzsa Tóth (PhD in language pedagogy; MSc in applied linguistics) is senior lecturer at the Institute of English and American Studies at Pázmány Péter Catholic University, Hungary. She is a teacher and teacher trainer in English as a Foreign Language. She teaches classes in language development and ELT methodology. Her professional interests include individual differences in second language learning, language teacher education issues and EFL teaching methodology. Her main research area is the study of foreign language anxiety. She has authored the book Foreign Language Anxiety and the Advanced Language Learner (Cambridge Scholars) and numerous articles on various aspects of anxiety in foreign language learning.

toth.zsuzsanna@btk.ppke.hu

Institute of English and American Studies

Pázmány Péter Catholic University

2087 Piliscsaba, Egyetem u. 1.

Hungary