

Notes of contributors

EDITORS:

Bogusława Dobek-Ostrowska is a Professor at the University of Wrocław and Chair of the Department of Communication and Journalism, Poland. She is a founder and past president (2007–2013) of the Polish Communication Association. She is a past president of the International Federation of Communication Associations (2010–2012). She has published several books and articles. She is interested in political communication and media systems. She is a founder and editor of the Central European Journal of Communication. She is an editor of the series Studies in Communication and Politics (Peter Lang Edition) and Politics and Communication (University of Wrocław Press).

E-mail: boguslawa.dobek-ostrowska@uwr.edu.pl

Adam Michel is a Ph.D. student at the Institute of Political Science at the University of Wrocław, Poland. He was a database coordinator of the Central European Journal of Communication. He has participated in a few international projects. His research interests focus on political communication, e-diplomacy, studies of journalism and political debates.

E-mail: adam.michel@uwr.edu.pl

CONTRIBUTORS:

Halit Buluthan Çetintaş, Ph.D., is an Assistant Professor at the Ataturk University in Erzurum, Turkey. His research interests focus on communication and media. His publications include articles, book chapters, and papers about corporate communications, public relations and media literacy. He has been working at the Department of Information Management.

E-mail: buluthancetintas@atauni.edu.tr

Zbigniew Dziubiński, Ph.D., is Professor at the University of Physical Education in Warsaw, Poland. He is head of the department of Humanities and Social Sciences. His main areas of research are sociology of sport and social inequalities in sport.

E-mail: zdziubinski@wp.pl

Mariann Fekete, Ph.D., is a lecturer at the Department of Sociology of the University of Szeged, Hungary. She has an MA and a PhD in Sociology, with a focus on generational cultural consumption in the digital age, eTime, and networking of leisure time. She lectures in subjects related to methodology, database management, political public opinion research, and sociology of youth, education, culture, and society.

E-mail: fekete.marianna@socio.u-szeged.hu

Mikael Jensen, Ph.D., is a senior lecturer and researcher at the University of Gothenburg, Sweden. His research interests focus on interpersonal communication, multimodal communication, communication competence, classroom communication, organizational communication, and leadership communication. His publications include books, articles, conference papers, and book chapters on interpersonal communication, multimodal communication and classroom communication.

E-mail: mikael.jensen@ait.gu.se

Balázs Kiss is a Ph.D. in Political Science, senior research fellow at the Centre for Social Sciences, Hungarian Academy of Sciences, Hungary. He conducts research on political communication, emotions, and visual studies.

E-mail: kiss.balazs@tk.mta.hu

Zuzanna Mazur, Ph.D., is working at the University of Physical Education in Warsaw at the Department of Theory and Methodology of Physical Education, Poland. Her research interests focus on social gender inequalities, issues concerning the image of women in sport and gender stereotypes related to the participation of women in sport.

E-mail: zuzanna.mazur@op.pl

Olatunji Ogunyemi, Ph.D., is a scholar of diaspora journalism in the School of English and Journalism at the University of Lincoln, UK. He is a Senior Academic Mentor in the College of Mentors at the Council for the Development of Social Research in Africa (CODE-SRIA). He is the convener of Media of Diaspora Research Group (MDRG) and regularly publishes articles in journals and chapters in edited books. He is the author of What Newspapers, Films, and Television do Africans Living in Britain See and Read? The Media of the African Diaspora.

E-mail: oogunyemi@lincoln.ac.uk

Natalia Organista, Ph.D., is working at the University of Physical Education in Warsaw at the Department of Sociology and Philosophy, Poland. Her research interests lie in the intersection of sport, gender, and mass communication.

E-mail: natalia.organista@gmail.com

Gabor Sarlos is the Discipline Lead, Communication at the School of Communication and Design of RMIT Vietnam. Previously, he had various teaching roles in the field of business and social communications at the Universities of Wolverhampton and of Worcester in the United Kingdom. He is the author of several publications and a book in the field of social discourse on nuclear energy, risk and crisis management, and sustainability communication. Prior to his academic career, as founder and managing partner of Pepper Communications PR, he took part in the development and implementation of a full range of communication campaigns, and built communication strategies for a range of for-profit, governmental and NGO organisations across Europe.

E-mail: gabor.sarlos@rmit.edu.vn

Gabriella Szabó, Ph.D. in Political Science. She is a full-time research fellow at the Centre for Social Sciences, Hungarian Academy of Sciences. Her research interests lie in the area of political communication, studies on public sphere, and media.

E-mail: szabo.gabriella@tk.mta.hu

Zeynep Turan, Ph.D., is an Assistant Professor at the Ataturk University in Erzurum, Turkey. Her research interests are in computer-based instruction, social media, instructional design, and research methods. She has been working at the Department of Computer Education and Instructional Technology.

E-mail: zeynepturan@atauni.edu.tr