Notes on contributors

EDITOR:

Róża Norström, PhD, is a senior lecturer at the Institute of Political Science and Journalism at the University of Silesia in Katowice. She has participated in several Polish and international research projects, such as "Ukraine 2014 — media war and the war in media". She is the author of several articles and chapters on the subject of media and communication. Her research interests focus on international relations, political communication and conflict reporting.

E-mail: roza.norstrom@us.edu.pl

CONTRIBUTORS:

Agnieszka Barczyk-Sitkowska, PhD, is an assistant professor at the Journalism and Social Communication Faculty of the University of Łódź, Poland. She graduated in Journalism and Social Communication and Culture Studies (specialty: film studies) at the mentioned university. She is Director-in-chief of the Eksperymentalne Laboratorium Reklamy UŁ. Interests: television and its genres, TV advertising, multicodes of audiovisual art.

E-mail: agnieszka.barczyk@uni.lodz.pl

Dren Gërguri, MA, works as a teaching assistant at the Department of Journalism in the Faculty of Philology of the University of Prishtina "Hasan Prishtina", Kosovo. He has lectured as a guest lecturer in some European universities. He is a PhD candidate at the Department of Journalism of the University of Prishtina. His research interests focus on media-politics relations, political communication, fake news, media ethics, and populism. His publications include papers and book chapters on media freedom, social media, politics, etc.

E-mail: dren.gerguri@uni-pr.edu

Dalma Kékesdi-Boldog, MA, is a PhD candidate at the Doctoral School of Social Communication of Budapest Corvinus University, Hungary. Her research interest is the information policy of state-socialist Hungary, especially the communication of the Chernobyl disaster of 1986. She is a book review editor of the Hungarian-language media studies quarterly Médiakutató (The media researcher).

E-mail: boldog.dalma@gmail.com

Mateusz Krzekotowski, MA, is a PhD candidate at the University of Łódź, Poland, Journalism and Social Communications Major (UŁ), Computer Graphics and Multimedia Techniques graduate (PŁ). Interested in contemporary Japanese and American culture, camp sensibility and video games.

E-mail: mateusz.krzekotowski@uni.lodz.pl

120 •••••• CENTRAL EUROPEAN JOURNAL OF COMMUNICATION 1 (2019) ISSN 1899-5101 Central European Journal of Communication vol. 12, no 1 (22), Spring 2019 © for this edition by CNS Melanie Leidecker-Sandmann is a postdoctoral researcher at the Karlsruhe Institute of Technology, Department of Science Communication, Germany. Prior to this, she worked at the University of Koblenz-Landau and the University of Mainz, Germany. Her research focuses on political communication, election campaign coverage/communication, and science communication.

E-mail: leidecker-sandmann@kit.edu

Jürgen Maier is a professor of political communication at the University of Koblenz-Landau, Germany. His research focuses on the content and effects of political communication, public opinion and voting behaviour, and quantitative social science research methods.

E-mail: maierj@uni-landau.de

Michaela Maier is a professor of communication psychology at the University of Koblenz-Landau, Germany. Her research focuses on political communication and science communication.

E-mail: mmaier@uni-landau.de

Andrej Školkay, PhD, scientist in charge of the research team of the School of Communication and Media, Slovakia, has published widely on various aspects of the media and politics. He is the author of Media and Globalisation (SCM, Bratislava, 2009) and published a book on Media Law in Slovakia (Kluwer Law International, The Netherlands, 2016). He obtained his PhD in 2000 from Comenius University in Bratislava, Slovakia.

E-mail: askolkay@gmail.com

Kaja Tampere, PhD, is a professor of public relations and communication. She is currently working at the Tartu Health Care College. Her research is concerned with innovations in social and corporate communication, and with the ways that stakeholders enter into communication policy, as well as science and health communication. She is the author of numerous journal articles and book chapters.

E-mail: kajatampere@gmail.com