

Notes on contributors

GUEST EDITOR:

Maarit Jaakkola, Doctor of Social Sciences, associate professor, co-director of the Nordic Centre for Media Research Nordicom at the University of Gothenburg, Sweden. Jaakkola also works as a lecturer in journalism at the Faculty of Information Technology and Communication Sciences at Tampere University, Finland. Jaakkola's research interests are localised at the intersection of theories of media, culture, and learning. Jaakkola is the chair of the Nordic collaboration committee for journalism education and editor-in-chief of NordMedia Network, a digital platform for Nordic media research. She was a member of the Erasmus+ strategic partnership project Media and Information Literacy & Innovative Teaching Methods Laboratory (MIL+LAB) in 2017–2020.

E-mail: maarit.jaakkola@gu.se

AUTHORS:

Auksė Balčytienė, PhD, professor of journalism and political communication and UNESCO Chair on MIL for Knowledge Inclusive Societies at Vytautas Magnus University, Lithuania. Balčytienė is cofounder of the Public Communications School, editorial board member of a number of international refereed journals, advisory board member of ECREA, and external reviewer at national and international research councils. She currently leads international comparative research projects dealing with cultural aspects in media performance and democratisation, and provides consultancy on journalism and media change, development, and professionalisation. Balčytienė's interests include media policy, international journalism and media cultures, media and information literacy, political communication and European public sphere, and Central and East European Studies.

E-mail: aukse.balcytiene@vdu.lt

Deimantas Jastramskis, PhD, associate professor at the Faculty of Communication at Vilnius University, Lithuania. His research interests include media policy, media systems, and media effects. With regard to media and information literacy, he has published papers on parasocial interaction between audience and celebrities, as well as an article on the presentation of suicides in media and its effects on the audience. Jastramskis is a council member at the Baltic Association for Media Research and participates in ECREA's Communication Law & Policy Section activities. Jastramskis was a member of the Erasmus+ strategic partnership project Media and Information Literacy & Innovative Teaching Methods Laboratory (MIL+LAB) in 2017–2020.

E-mail: deimantas.jastramskis@kf.vu.lt

Michał Kuś, PhD, assistant professor in the Department of Communication and Journalism (Institute of Political Science) at the University of Wrocław, Poland. His research interests include media systems, especially aspects of media control, ownership, and regulation, and relations between media and politics. Kuś is the project director and editor of the European Journalism Observatory Polish website. Kuś was a member of the Erasmus+ strategic partnership project Media and Information Literacy & Innovative Teaching Methods Laboratory (MIL+LAB) in 2017–2020.

E-mail: michal.kus2@uwr.edu.pl

Krista Lepik, PhD, post-doctoral researcher at Lund University, Sweden. Lepik also works as a lecturer in information sciences at the University of Tartu, Estonia. After defending her PhD thesis Governmentality and cultural participation in Estonian public knowledge institutions in 2013, Lepik's research interests have evolved, first, around museum and library communication and engagement, and, second, media and information literacy in various contexts such as information cultures of students, reception of false news, and information practices of information professionals in the context of the acceleration of social time. Lepik was a member of the Erasmus+ strategic partnership project Media and Information Literacy & Innovative Teaching Methods Laboratory (MIL+LAB) in 2017–2020.

E-mail: krista.lepik@ut.ee

Paulina Barczyszyn-Madziarz, PhD, coordinator of the ERASMUS + programme and assistant professor at the Institute of Political Science, Department of Communication and Journalism at the University of Wrocław, Poland. Her research interests focus on political communication, media systems, journalistic culture, and the relationships between media and politics. She participated in the research projects Media Accountability and Transparency in Europe (MediaAct) (2010–2013), Journalism in Change – Professional Journalistic Cultures in Poland, Russia and Sweden (2011–2014) and European Journalism Observatory (2014–2017). Barczyszyn-Madziarz was a member of the Erasmus+ strategic partnership project Media and Information Literacy & Innovative Teaching Methods Laboratory (MIL+LAB) in 2017–2020.

E-mail: paulina.barczyszyn-madziarz@uwr.edu.pl

Michael Forsman, PhD, associate professor, lecturer and head of department of the Media and Communication Studies at the School of Culture and Education at Södertörn University, Huddinge, Sweden. He is also involved in teaching and project management in teacher's training at Södertörn University. His main research areas include children, youth and media, media literacy, popular culture, and media history. Forsman has published several monographs, edited volumes, book chapters and reports. Currently he is finishing the project The Media Citizen and the Medialization of Swedish Schools 1962–2017: Curriculum, Teaching Material, Teacher Training.

E-mail: michael.forsman@sh.se

Kertti Merimaa, MA, chief specialist at the Ministry of Social Affairs in Tallinn, Estonia. Merimaa graduated from Information and Knowledge Management at the University of Tartu and holds an academic diploma in Business Analysis. Her main research interest is the uses of information literacy in policymaking. Currently, as a public servant, her professional activities focus on health literacy, as well as documentation and data usage in the Estonian health care system.

E-mail: kertti.merimaa@sm.ee

Lauri Palsa, MA, senior advisor at the Finnish National Audiovisual Institute (KAVI), Finland. Palsa works as the team leader for the media education team in KAVI's Department for Media Education and Audiovisual Media. He has several years' experience in researching, developing, and promoting national media education in Finland. Palsa is also a doctoral student at the University of Lapland. His research interests focus on the contextualised literacies in the digital mediated world, curriculum and policy research, and media education.

E-mail: lauri.palsa@kavi.fi

Anda Rožukalne, Doctor of Social Sciences, professor and dean of the Faculty of Communication at Riga Stradiņš University, Latvia. Her research interests include the development of journalism values, innovative audience research methods, media literacy, and media regulation. She has authored academic publications on journalism, media content, and media systems in Latvia and the Baltic States. Since 2015, Rožukalne is a team leader for Latvia for the project European Media Pluralism Monitor. In 2018, Rožukalne was invited to become a member of the European Commission High Level Experts Group on Disinformation and Fake News. Rožukalne was a member of the Erasmus+ strategic partnership project Media and Information Literacy & Innovative Teaching Methods Laboratory (MIL+LAB) in 2017–2020.

E-mail: anda.rozukalne@rsu.lv

Katrin Saks, Doctor of Education, director of the Baltic Film, Media, Arts and Communication School at Tallinn University, Estonia, since 2011. She has studied journalism in Tartu University and worked for 18 years in Estonian Television as a journalist and later as a head of journalism programs and member of the board. She has also been a member of the Broadcasting Council of the Estonian public broadcasting company ERR. During the past years, she has initiated and been practically involved in media literacy education projects and practical trainings at Tallinn University.

E-mail: katrin.saks@tlu.ee

Saara Salomaa, MA, deputy director and head of department for Media Education and Audiovisual Media in the Finnish National Audiovisual Institute (KAVI). KAVI's media education includes expert consulting, policy development, networking and strategic planning, research and producing educational resources. Salomaa leads the Finnish Safer Internet Centre (FISIC), a long-term project partly funded by the European Commission. She is also in charge of the media literacy section of the national New Literacies project lead by the Ministry of Education and Culture. Salomaa's research interests range from media literacy policies to professionals' media educational consciousness and children's media usage.

E-mail: saara.salomaa@kavi.fi

Svetlana Shomova, Doctor of Political Sciences, professor at the Media Department of the National Research University Higher School of Economics in Moscow, Russia. Shomova is working as a researcher at the Centre for Digital Cultures and Media Literacy of the HSE University. She is also a member of the Expert Council for Political Science in the Higher Attestation Commission of the Ministry of Education of the Russian Federation. Shomova co-authored and co-edited the textbook Multimediynaya journalistika [Multimedia journalism] and authored the book Memy kak oni est [Memes as they are]. Shomova's research interests include media and news literacy, new media ethics, and political communication.

E-mail: sshomova@hse.ru

Ilva Skulte, Doctor of Philology, associate professor and head of the master's programme in Communication and Media Studies at Riga Stradiņš University, Latvia. Skulte's research interests include media discourse analysis, new media culture analysis, visual communication, children and media, and media literacy. With a background in studies of language and literature, she has had a major interest in issues related to the advent of new digital and social media and its impact on texts in terms of multimodality, interactivity, and collaboration. Since 2000, she has also worked as a cultural journalist and literary critic. Skulte was a member of the Erasmus+ strategic partnership project Media and Information Literacy & Innovative Teaching Methods Laboratory (MIL+LAB) in 2017–2020.

E-mail: iskulte@gmail.com

Alnis Stakle, Doctor of Education, assistant professor of photography and head of two bachelor study programmes at Riga Stradiņš University, Latvia. His research focuses on the intersections between media studies, visual culture studies, and art education. He has been working with photography as an independent curator, art educator, photo editor and publisher since 1996. His artistic work, which has been exhibited widely and is held in private and public collections, addresses current sociopolitical issues, regimes of representation, and documentarisms. Stakle was a member of the Erasmus+ strategic partnership project Media and Information Literacy & Innovative Teaching Methods Laboratory (MIL+LAB) in 2017–2020.

E-mail: alnis.stakle@rsu.lv

Andrius Šuminas, PhD, associate professor and head of the Media Research Lab in the Faculty of Communication at Vilnius University, Lithuania. His main areas of research are political communication, web campaigning, interactive networking and social media, communication theories, and media effects. Šuminas was a member of the Erasmus+ strategic partnership project Media and Information Literacy & Innovative Teaching Methods Laboratory (MIL+LAB) in 2017–2020.

E-mail: ansumi@gmail.com

The Special Issue is funded by the Erasmus+ strategic partnership project Media and Information Literacy & Innovative Teaching Methods Laboratory (MIL+LAB)

Referees: Peter Bobkowski, University of Kansas, Lawrence, USA; Michael Forsman, Södertörn University, Stockholm, Sweden; Olga Kamenchuk, Ohio State University, Columbus, USA; Ragne Kõuts-Klemm, University of Tartu, Estonia; Adina Marincea, School of Communication and Media (SKAMBA), Bratislava, Slovakia; Jacek Pyżalski, Adam Mickiewicz University (UAM), Poznań, Poland; Tiina Räisä, University of Jyväskylä, Finland; Andra Siibak, University of Tartu, Estonia; Andrej Školkay, School of Communication and Media (SKAMBA), Bratislava, Slovakia; Sonja Spiranec, University of Zagreb, Croatia; Piotr Toczyski, The Maria Grzegorzewska University, Warsaw, Poland; Kadri Ugur, University of Tartu, Estonia;

Proofreader: Kristin Clay, Nordicom, University of Gothenburg

Design: Barbara Kaczmarek

Publisher's editor: Stephen Marlborough

© Copyright by Polish Communication Association, Wrocław 2020

Typesetting by Wydawnictwo Uniwersytetu Wrocławskiego, Sp. z o.o.

Print run: 150 copies

Orders for the publications of Wydawnictwo Uniwersytetu Wrocławskiego
should be directed to:

Dział Sprzedaży

Wydawnictwo Uniwersytetu Wrocławskiego Sp. z o.o.

50-137 Wrocław, pl. Uniwersytecki 15

tel. +48 71 3752885

e-mail: marketing@wuwr.com.pl

www.wuwr.com.pl

Wydawnictwo Uniwersytetu Wrocławskiego
invites to its bookshop:

- Online bookshop: www.wuwr.com.pl

- Księgarnia Uniwersytecka

50-137 Wrocław, pl. Uniwersytecki 15

tel. +48 71 3752923